English – Target Level C1.1

Lecturer: Dr. Hendrik Winterstein

Coursebook: Roadmap C1/C2, Chapters 1-5

Format: Face-to-face, 4 contact hours

Content:

On this course, participants work towards the goal of academic language use. They can express themselves fluently and with the appropriate topic vocabulary, both orally and in writing, on topics discussed in the course relating to university, the world of work, and society (e.g., team building, changes, consumer choice, fact or fiction, and volunteering). They can explain their own point of view and discuss it spontaneously. They understand a wide variety of academic and non-academic texts, both spoken and written, and are able to grasp nuances.

Participants have reviewed and expanded their knowledge of grammatical structures in order to express probability, formulate coherent arguments and story lines, write summaries, and form hypotheses. Participants are able to grasp the semantic and cultural nuances of texts and perform mediation tasks such as rephrasing highly specific academic texts into simpler language.

The coursebook forms the basis for the progression of the course. The course content is based on the CEFR (Common European Framework of Reference) for level C1.
